Dear Person Who Works in the Photo Lab Who May Happen to be Reading This,

If you are looking at these images and are wondering what they are, you may have concerns over the legality of printing them. I just want to assure you that it is OK to print them. These 24 images are the work of 24 different artists who agreed to participate in having their art printed like digital photographs. Most of them I know personally, and the others I have contacted online. I have full permission from them to print these. Also, some of these may be pixelated and some may look a little strange - please print all of them as they are. The artists have chosen the quality and look of their image, so you can disregard any of your judgment on the color, cropping, or definition (this means less work for you). I am only writing you this to prevent the hassle of coming in to pick up the prints and having them not be ready (or printed wrongly) - and then having to provide an explanation and return later to pick them up.

I hope this note finds you well and you are making the best of your day.

Thank You,
David
